Coverage for Dependents Up to Age 26. As a reminder, a participant's dependent adult child age 18 to 26 who is not currently covered may be eligible to enroll or re-enroll for coverage. An annual certification regarding whether other employer-sponsored health coverage is available to the adult child (either from the employer of the adult child or the employer of the adult child's spouse) is required to continue coverage in 2013 for a participant's dependent adult child (age 18 to 26) who is currently covered under the Plan. Please check your mail for additional certification information if you have an adult child (age 18 to 26) who is currently covered under the Plan.

Unemployment Continuation of Coverage. Don't forget about this important benefit, especially during these difficult economic times! Eligible participants can extend their eligibility for coverage for up to 18 months. Contact the Fund Office as soon as you receive your COBRA notice to confirm if you are eligible for Unemployment Continuation of Coverage and the applicable rates. Remember that you can use your HRA reimbursements to pay for unemployment continuation of coverage.
